Edited by JULIA CHANDLER HANZ

OF NET AND CHIFFON.

First, there is an undershirt of chiffon just tinged with ink. This is gathered to a satin cord around the neck and veiled with a surplice waist of plain cream white net. Over this is a bolero of figured net, in light ecru, covered with crocheted pendant.

A girle of the chiffon, covered with the white net, extends around the back of the waist, ending at each side with a ruffle of pink satin, the space between these being crossed by folds of the chiffon. The ruffles are also placed at the neck, as shown, the bolero being slightly gathered under them. The closing is at the back.

Puff Balls.

Almost any soft fruit may be used in these, but it must be quite ripe, the best results being obtained from peaches and bananas. Beat two yolks of eggs until thick and light-colored, and then add gradually three-fourths of a cup of sliced fruit, beating continuously until all is blended. Add to this a tablespoonful of each of olive oil (or melted butter) and sugar, one-third of a cup of milk, a cup and a half of flour, sifted with two teaspoonsful of baking powder and a little salt. Just before trying to mix in lightly the stiff whites of the eggs and with spoonfuls into hot fat. Dredge with powdered sugar and serve at once.

Tes Cakes.

Sift with one quart of flour seven teaspoonsful of baking powder and rub into it a large tablespoonful of butter, add a little salt, mix quickly into a soft dough with sweet milk. Half fill rings or tins (about five inches across is a nice size) and bake quickly in a hot oven. Let the cakes cool slightly, cut them through the middle, butter well, and divide into four pieces. A nice luncheon dish and one often served in England for breakfast.

PRIZE AWARDS WILL BE ANNOUNCED TO-MORROW

The "Ideal Man" Contest, which ended Thursday at noon, proved one of the most successful and interesting discussions ever conducted in The Herald's Page for Every Woman.

More than seven hundred essays were read by the judges selected to decide the prize awards, representing almost every State in the Union, which not only proves the broad extent of the circulation of The Washington Herald, but also the interest given by its readers to every department.

Tremendous eagerness has been manifested in the announcement of the prize awards, and publication of the prize-winning essays, which will be found in this department to-morrow.

To make sure of securing The Washington Herald Sunday you will do well to order it to-day.

FURTHER DESCRIPTIONS OF FEMINE IDEALS OF MANHOOD

When the "Idealism" Contest closed Thursday hundreds of essays submitted were turned over to the judges to decide the prize awards. While you await the publication of their decisions, which will be contained in the Sunday issue of The Herald's Page for Every Woman, I will publish a few of the many descriptions received before the contest ended, of which the following are some of the most interesting:

Saw Her Ideal

In a Dream.

"A would-be writer" sat under the oak beside the spring, with pencil in hand trying to draw a picture of "The Ideal Man," but her fancy played at hide and seek, and finally against the friendly tree she fell into a deep sleep. In her dream all the men who had made love to her passed before her, each in turn claiming recognition as the hero of her dreams—each of them she knew ranked high in the opinion of her friends, and yet when she looked into their eyes the "Ideal" was not there.

At last the spring seemed a vast river, and the roots of the tree a frail bark in which she was tossed from side to side in the great stream. After what seemed a lifetime, and the boat was a soul from which the grace of God, and his own determination, he had eradicated the base and low.

As they talked each were filled with a satisfying completeness, and a rare sympathy which each had long dreamed of finding and never dared hope to realize. He pleaded for her to be his inspiration as he strove to do his part nobly in the Drama of Life.

At last the woman drew out her pen-cup—"You are My Ideal Man," she said. "Write me as that in your Dream Book," he answered, "to others I am Merely a Man."

MY KING.

When and where shall I meet him, if ever, And what the words he first shall say? How shall the magic, he speaks away? Our kindred spirit, he broken away? This selfless sun on him is shining, Shining somewhere the while I sing. The only one whom, my will reigning, Could I ever acknowledge my King.

Many a face have I liked for a minute, Been charmed by a voice with a pleasant ring; But ever and anon there was something in it, Something which could not be His-My King's. Whether his hair be golden or raven, Whether his eyes be blue or brown, I know not now, but 'twill be evident On that pure day as my perfect boy.

He may not be brilliantly gifted, my lord, And he may be learned in everything; But when he comes, he will win the crowd Whose melody awakes to the hand of my King.

But he must be courteous toward the lowly, To the weak and sorrowful; loving too. He must be courageous, refined, and holy. By nature, he must be true and true. To such I could devote the best of my being Of a love which would never outgrow its spring. Few tales would there be of woman's weeping Did they love such a man as my King.

HER SUPERIOR.

The kind of a man I would choose for a husband would first attract me by his pleasant appearance. He would not necessarily be a handsome man, but one whose face and manner would reveal him to be honest, good-natured, and trustworthy. He should be taller than I, and physically, as well as mentally and morally, strong, to a well-balanced degree. I should prefer him to be at least two years older than I. Books, music, and orderly, well-arranged home surroundings would be sources of mutual enjoyment to us. An evening spent in reading and music, with the patter of raindrops on the roof of a cozy little bungalow, would not be monotonous to him. He should have a lively sense of humor, as I think nothing so productive of intellectual understanding and sympathy. He should have deep respect for all women. He must above all be a lover of children, and together our own should be planned for as earnestly desired additions to the home. He should be considerate of the feelings of others, and never intentionally inflict pain. Dogs, kittens, horses, and all dumb animals should find in him a friend. My principal wish is that he be a home-loving man, glad of company, and willing to take his wife around after marriage; but still mighty glad to spend a quiet evening at home. Carl Schurz said, "Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands; but like the seafaring man on the desert waters, you chase them as your guides, and, following them, you reach your destiny." In seeking my ideal, therefore, I do not expect to find a perfect man, but if I am loved by one, with a few of these attributes I shall be happy in my destiny.

Wants One of Mature Years and Character.

My Ideal Man is a man of mature years, with gray hair and large, expressive, soulful eyes, medium size and extremely neat and well-groomed, cultured and up to date in looks and manners, with a sunny disposition, very generous, and kind and considerate of others. He is dignified without reserve, intellectual and cautious, and has moral courage to do and say the right thing at the proper time.

He is honorable, truthful, and sincere. He has good, honest, American blood in his veins. He is loved by one, and his wife is his companion, and he is very HOPEFUL.

To Stone Raisins Easily.

Most housewives agree that raisins which are stoned at home have a much better taste, than those which are bought already seeded, but it is a sticky job. This can be done very easily if the raisins are first soaked for five minutes in boiling water and then plunged into ice water. The seeds can be removed easily with a wooden toothpick.

Green Pea Salad.

Take one part English walnuts broken in small pieces to two parts cold green peas. Mix with plenty of salad dressing and serve garnished with sprigs of parsley or lettuce leaves.

TWO AUGUST HATS.

Some of the prettier hats show figured organdie in their makeup. The one at the top of the illustration has this material for a crown, with a brim of straw, flowers and ties of black velvet, faced with green, are the only trimming.

The other hat is a French design, made of lace and trimmed with white ribbon. Around the inside of the brim is a row of pink roses and smaller roses edge the white satin band.

MAY RETAIN RESIDENCE.

Washington Lithgow Not to Be Expelled from Dominican Republic.

The expulsion of Washington Lithgow, an American citizen, from the Dominican Republic, has been averted through the intervention in his behalf of United States Minister Russell. It was learned here yesterday.

Lithgow's expulsion was ordered by the Dominican government because of alleged political activities. It was charged that Lithgow has been sending exaggerated and sensational reports of revolutionary disturbances now going on in the vicinity of Puerto Plata, where he resides, to a New York newspaper, which has always been opposed to the American occupation of the Dominican Republic. The threatened expulsion of the American, Minister Russell was then instructed to investigate, and the expulsion order was rescinded as a result of his efforts.

BOY'S NEGLIGE SHIRT.

Many women make the shirts for the men and boys of the household, and the task is certainly an easy one when such splendid models as the one here shown are given. This shirt can be made with the regulation or coat collar. It can be finished with an attached collar or with a neckband for wear with separate collar, and with attached, straight or rolled up cuffs or wristbands for wear with separate cuffs.

The pattern, No. 5895, is cut in sizes 10 to 16 years. Medium size will require 2 1/2 yards of 36-inch wide or 2 1/2 yards of fabric 36 inches wide.

The pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the Pattern Department of The Washington Herald.

ODDS AND ENDS.

When there are desserts to be cooled quickly, hence must be set directly on the ice, put two or three fruit jar rubbers on ice and set dish on them, it will not slip off.

Take a thin board and cut it the exact size of your wash boiler, and drill plenty of holes in it. Then attach four legs (either wood or cast piping) to set it on. When ready to steam fruit, put in three inches of water in the boiler and set your jars on the board. Cover tight.

For the summer cottage where there is no closet room put a couple of hooks in the ceiling about six inches apart. Put up a strong line and just button or pin garment by neck around the line. They will not muss any more than when hung in closet and lots of clothes can be hung in a small space. Hang curtain or sheet over them to keep out the dust.

To make tea without hot water just take the required amount of tea and tie in cheese cloth bag and pour cold water over and set in ice box a few hours before needed and you have ice tea any time.

When cooking peas or squash or other green vegetables add one teaspoon sugar to each quart of water used. It will bring out the flavor of the vegetable and is very agreeable especially with peas cooked with cream.

ELKS' REUNION HAS DOUBLE PURPOSE

Event Will Mark Rejuvenation of Friendship of Lodges and Lay Stress on Benevolent Duties.

A double purpose will be served when the reunion of the Washington and Alexandria Lodges of Elks is celebrated at Luna Park next week.

The event will mark the rejuvenation and quickening of the close friendship that has existed between the two organizations for several years, and while, superficially, the week will seem to be devoted to recreation and amusement, there will be an underlying motive, indiscreet, but none the less potent, more altruistic than frivolous.

The fact that the B. P. O. Elks is not as far-reaching and influential for good as possible, those having the arrangements in charge will invite every fraternal, regardless of creed or doctrine, represented in the Capital and its Virginia neighbor to attend the reunion as guests on designated nights. The general public will be welcome to participate at all times, no admission charge being levied.

To foster this spirit and create a common interest not only between the lodges, but among the membership of each, the reunion was conceived. That the fraternal aspect of the undertaking may be as far-reaching and influential for good as possible, those having the arrangements in charge will invite every fraternal, regardless of creed or doctrine, represented in the Capital and its Virginia neighbor to attend the reunion as guests on designated nights. The general public will be welcome to participate at all times, no admission charge being levied.

Chevy Chase Lake.

Chevy Chase Lake, with its many attractions, continues to be one of the most popular amusement resorts near town. "The lake" is especially pleasing to many on Sunday evening, when dancing is eliminated and the musical program occupies the card.

There are any number of diversions other than music and dancing. The bowling alleys and shooting gallery claim the attention of those who go in for strenuous amusement, while the swings and merry-go-round find devotees among the youngsters, and boating on the lake is popular with all.

Laundrymen Make Answer.

Louis Levy, vice president of the Franchise Laundry Company; Frederick W. MacKenzie, secretary and treasurer of the Tolman Laundry Company; Clarence F. Sowers, treasurer of the Columbia Laundry Company, and S. T. Ryall yesterday entered their plea of not guilty before Justice Wright on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the award of contracts for washing the towels used in the various departments.

Lawn Fete to Raise Democratic War Fund

Women's League Arranges for First Benefit to Be Held Next Thursday at Fairfield.

The campaign of the Women's Democratic League, which is to be actively carried on from coast to coast, to fill the coffers of the party for the coming Presidential struggle, will be officially opened in Washington next Thursday, when the District branch of the organization gives a lawn fete for the benefit of Wilson headquarters, at Fairfield, an extension of Connecticut Avenue.

Several Congressmen interested in the movement, among whom are Richmond P. Hobson, Representative from Alabama; John E. Baker, Representative from California; and Irwin S. Pepper, Representative from Iowa, will make minute addresses. The short addresses are felt to be most in keeping with the entertainment.

The lawn fete Thursday evening will be a signal to the branches throughout the nation that the active work is on, and within a short time of the national example, says Miss Dabney, vice president of the league, musicals, lawn fets, lectures, dances, amateur plays, concerts, picnics, carnivals, socials, excursions, and most every other form of money-making entertainment will be started in every city, town, village, district, crossroads and ranch community to swell the Democratic campaign fund.

And Some Left Over.

From the date of the opening in Washington until the campaign ends, a steady stream of small coin of the realm will be persuaded, argued, demonstrated, enticed, and encouraged to take its way from the pockets of the people into the strong boxes of the league, and the women expect to have a substantial balance after all legitimate campaign expenditures are covered. In fact, it is felt that they may be able to raise enough by their activities to elect Mr. Wilson, and then build another Washington Monument to commemorate the election.

The league already sees the great battle of November near. It has visions of a consummate women's political organization.

Next Thursday begins it all. Members of the league plan that the coming fete go down in history with all the importance of Columbus' discovery of America, and the Battle of Waterloo.

Laborers Leave Canal.

Disintegration of the labor force at work on the Panama Canal has begun with the approach of the completion of the isthmian waterway. It has been found that the majority of the unskilled laborers thrown out of work are going to work on the banana plantations of Costa Rica and Guatemala. A statement recently received from the United Fruit Company, which is the principal fruit-growing operation in Central America, shows that in the last few months 1,500 former canal laborers have gone to Guatemala alone, and are at work for the company in that country. Of these 460 were West Indians, 250 were Greeks, 412 were Spaniards, and 120 were Hindus.

Train Is Derailed.

Huntington, W. Va., July 26.—A special train on the Guyan Valley branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, bearing President George W. Stevens, Fourth Vice President Caples, Rupt. Carey, and other officials of the system, was derailed early to-day near Barboursville. The train was proceeding cautiously because of washouts, and this fact prevented casualties.
